

To the FCC,
I must register my extreme opposition to Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to insist that their stations run an anti-Kerry documentary two weeks before the election. To me this is a dangerous precedent, a striking example of the grave problems of media consolidation.

Because Sinclair is broadcasting over public airwaves--and free of charge--they are obligated by law to serve the public interest. But when giant companies take over airwaves like this, our democratic values are put in peril.

The license renewal process needs to be more rigorous. Please make sure that Sinclair does not get away with this anti-democratic and grossly partisan action.
Sincerely,
Sarah Towers.
